FIRST WEEKS IN THE ARMY.

As the soldiers return home for short visits or see their friends at the camp, they are telling a mighty interesting story of their first weeks of training. It is a revelation to many men who formerly were used to home comforts.

The first days seemed pretty rough to many of them. Their officers or wives had fixed up comforts for their clothing and toilet. They were not allowed to keep many of these. It is the principle of the new army that all the men are to be equipped alike. It is not wished that some have luxuries not enjoyed by others.

When a man has been used to home cooking, comfortable or luxurious rooms, and many little conveniences it goes a bit hard to come down to the bare necessities of camp living.

Then they had to march and march and go through laborious and hardening exercises, their muscles ached all over, and their feet burned. But gradually they got the contagious enthusiasm of the fellows around them. Then they began to feel ashamed because they got fatigued so easily. Day by day the fresh air and they felt able to perform stunts that would have prostrated them six weeks before.

Fellows that used to drink regularly learned the advantage of temperance. Lazy men are finding out the benefits of active exercise. Indoor workers now know what a tonic the open air is.

When parents and friends come around to visit, they hardly know the boy. He has a clearer eye, a more erect carriage, a firmer step. If he has too much flesh it is gone. There is no doubt that army life is working wonders for the boys, and it will make them able to endure hardships that they could never have stood before.

CHANGE OF HEART.

Many a man has a change of heart since this war began. Since he learned that the engines shells actually were hitting his brother, your brother, my son and your son. Moving them down like ripe grain at a harvest. Cutting their throats like barbarians in their trenches, and slaughtering them without mercy when the opportunity arose. Still, the few that have lost their lives, their fellow soldiers by the half million already trained are ready to avenge them, and behind them are a hundred million people, ready to back the fighters with food, money and encouragement. This war has made us one nation as no other factor could. This war has united peoples of various races, religions and beliefs as nothing else could. Right here in Rock county we have many who have passed through this transformation and are now as pro-American as they were pro-something else a few months ago. We have others who are in the transformation period, but the majority of our citizens will emerge as loyal as the desert eagles or the Mayflower pilgrims or the sons and daughters of the revolution, many of whom have proven themselves slayers when it came to actual military service.

DOWN IN TEXAS.

"Way down south in the land of cotton," are some two hundred and ten Rock county boys, members of Company M, with over a hundred other odd and wily fellows belonging to some of the Wisconsin contingents learning to be soldiers. These boys are worthy of consideration. They want letters, they want to hear from those they left behind them, particularly the girl who waits until "Johnny Comes Marching Home Again." A letter from home is something they look forward to and they should not be disappointed. You business men who have a spare moment or two can spend it to advantage by dropping a line to some member of the Rock county contingent down in Texas. A line lets him know you have not forgotten him and he can do his work ten fold more strenuously. Just remember what it would be if you were far away from home and wished for some word and none came. Too soon these boys are going across, and when they do they will need letters more than ever. Those Texas soldiers are too far away to come home every week or two, so write them and encourage them.

WHERE MERIT COUNTS.

Some of the boys in the bay national army are getting pleasant surprises by this time. During their first weeks of training they had realized keenly their own awkwardness. Their feet kept getting tangled up and they could not get quick and sure crispness of action that the army drill calls for. But they had tried hard and have caught the step faster than they could. It is the report from the training camps that merit is pretty apt to be recognized. The army has never taken kindly to ideas of political favoritism. Men trained in splendid schools like West Point see the folly of trying to build up a strong and efficient organization on any other basis than real merit.

So the fellows that have worked hard are being noticed and the best of them will soon be getting recognition. No triumph that comes to a man in his whole career will be sweeter than his promotion from the ranks to be a corporal. How he will swell out when his mother and best girl come to see him!

Considering the freedom with which everyone talks about that the government is doing, it would seem to be a waste of money for the Germans to be maintaining so many spies over here.

Objection is raised to women doing the work of bootblacks, but in view of the number of men who lack the muscle and energy to shine their own boots, this seems to be necessary.

The result of the war is not so much a question of beating the Germans in battle as whether the spies can persuade the American workman to keep striking all the time.

Only 40,000 ideas have been so far offered to the government for beating the U-boats. Why don't the other 99,960,000 people of the United States get busy and hand in their suggestions?

If the food hoarders can only be sent to jail there won't be any complaint if they have to suffer from the scarcity that they are trying to create for other people.

The railroad trainmen ask for 42 per cent increase in pay. Just why they did not ask to have it doubled while they were about it is not clear.

Judging by some of our newspaper experts, the troubles of the allied generals occur simply because they did not read the military editor's reviews.

Now they have it fixed up so that one of our allies won't try to steal second while another is knocking a pop fly, things should go better.

When the football player sprains his little finger now, his anxious relatives are not quite so much upset as they were in the days before the war.

Three cent postage has upset business a good deal, but it has not interfered with the amount of poetry offered to the newspapers.

The children won't have any "Made in Germany" toys for Christmas, and one result may be that the toys will last over New Year's day.

After Mr. Hoover takes charge of the bakeshop, December 10th, it is hoped that they will learn that flour has gone down in price.

The people who want peace right away must want another war again soon.

It wouldn't do the socialists any good to get into power, as then they couldn't have the satisfaction of planning revolutions.

So much good food is being sent to the bottom of the sea that fish ought to get mighty fat and good food now.

WALWORTH COUNTY WEEKLY LETTERS

First of Regular Series Written on Various Subjects That Will Interest Readers.

Starting with the article appearing below, the Gazette will each week run a letter on Walworth county activities that should prove most interesting reading. The writer's name is withheld but the accuracy of the statements that may appear are vouched for. This is the first of the series. Elkhorst, Nov. 21.—Speaking about bank deposits, here in Walworth county the bankers are keen after them. They have the county money for instead of a meager 2 per cent for county funds they are glad to pay three and then pay $100 for the privilege. It seems that the county board this week decided to let the bankers have the county money for safe keeping for the coming year, but later on recanted. They rescinded their original action and voted to keep the funds in Elkhorst. And as usual, some are glad and some are "sad."

Once in a while even an editor can get sick and the whole county will sit up and take notice. It is so in the case of Editor Eames of the Elkhorst Independent for he is not only an able newspaper man but he is a high-class citizen (paradoxical as it may seem). There is another thing about him that is worth noting: When John Snyder, a former partner of Mr. Eames, heard about the latter's illness he switched his Kansas City affairs in double-quick time in order that he might be able to help him in the time of need. And so the editor is resting easy and is recovering from his dangerous illness, while the independent continues to be a live-wire and perhaps just a little bit hotter.

Our good friend, Mr. Martini, drove to Lake Geneva one evening this week and joined the Masons. While Mr. Martini was doing the goat someone rode off with his horse. The animal was found the next day but the thief is still at large.

The real event of the week has been the session of the county board. The members were on the job only three three days yet in that time accomplished more than some boards do in a month. But they had to do it to sustain this reputation, had to do it in order to make some Smith's bunch look like beginners. Among other things the board appropriated $6,000 for highways the coming year. They adjourned until Jan. 8.

Years ago when I was a boy I remember about the LaGrange deer-hunters. And they are still at it. They left this week nearly a dozen strong for the northern woods. When they return they will have something to tell all these years of civilization. During driving them farther north until this year they will have almost reached the limit. But Scott Foster says that when deer is a thing of the past he expects to still be making these annual pilgrimages. Memories of the good friends and good times will make it worth while.

Some of the citizens of Lake Geneva and nearby gardeners offered to furnish the seed, look after the planting and the crop and give the proceeds to charity to the County Council of the Elkhorst. It didn't take the Council of Defense long to close its part of the bargain, and here is the result: The rental of the land was $30 and over $1,000 worth of produce has been harvested and sold and the proceeds turned over to the Red Cross. That is the right sort of patriotism and all honor to the gardeners' association and the others in Lake Geneva who had a part in it.

James Parsons, by request, agreed to start up his sorghum mill this year. And he has started a successful season. Jim retired from this business several years ago—retired for all time, he declared. But someone put it up to him that it was his duty to help put down the high cost of living, and that settled it. It is such actions as his that help out in these uncertain days. Lake Geneva will hold its poultry show Jan. 4, 5 and 6. It is always a big success.

The Y. M. C. A. campaign in this county is wonderfully successful. The old order of things is being reversed and people are asking for the privilege of subscribing.

GERMAN PROPAGANDA IS RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS

[BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS.]

Washington, Nov. 21.—Reports that there is danger of poisoning from vegetables preserved by the cold pack method have been placed in the category of enemy propaganda by Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the National Emergency Food Garden commission. "The cold pack method has been in use for five years and neither death nor serious illness has resulted from food canned according to directions," Pack said. "Home canned goods are safe and necessary."

All a food dealer has to do to make money now is to go out and start a rumor that something is scarce.

A GOLFER'S PLAIN. Driver and brassie and cleek. Just to me now while I speak! Down through the season I've shouted your praises, Boasted my skill with you Clipping off daisies, Flicking cigar stubs With form that was splendid. Now that we're quitting, The long season's ended, Tell me, I pray, As we part in the fall, Why were you ever Afraid of the ball?

Never a bloom on the lot I could unerringly swat; Cigarette boxes I struck with precision, Correct in my pistol, And certain of vision; Wrist turn exactly As Aleck Ross taught me, A model of form Nearly everyone thought me, But tell me, I pray, As my woes I recall, Why did you spoil Every shot at the ball?

MISS MARGARET VAIL IS BRIDE OF WILLIAM NOLAN

A quiet wedding was solemnized at six o'clock this morning at St. Patrick's church when Miss Margaret Vail and William Nolan were united in marriage by Dean Reilly. Immediately following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride, 403 South Franklin street, after which the happy couple departed on a short honeymoon trip.

Washington now says it will make the coal men obey the government. Some job, but maybe it can be done. Things are going by contraries these days. It may happen.

ROCK COUNTY BOYS WON MANY PRIZES

Three prize winning animals at the second annual Wisconsin Baby Beef Show held under the direction of the Wisconsin Live Stock Breeders' association at the stock pavilion of the College of Agriculture in Madison last week, were exhibited by Rock county youngsters.

In the senior division for calves dropped since September 1, 1916, and before January 1, 1917, Harry McCann of Janesville placed seventh with his Short Horn steer. He sold it at the sale following the show for $154.85.

Two Edgerton boys placed in the junior division. Harold Hall won seventh with his Angus heifer, which he later sold for $172.00. The Hereford heifer on which George Scott took the final position in the junior division was not offered for sale.

Young people from twelve counties of the state showed animals in the event which represented the round-up of several preliminary contests held at county and district fairs during the summer and fall.

Edgerton, Evansville, acted as coach for the young feeders and answered questions relative to methods of handling the calves throughout the entire feeding period. His work was well received and has been of great educational value.

J. C. Imboden, Decatur, Illinois, participated in the ring at the final show at Madison. His decisions, based upon years of experience in feeding and fitting corn belt beef, were just and generally satisfactory.

Forty-three animals were entered in the show. Of these 28 were in the senior class and 15 in the junior division. There were 12 Herefords, 22 Shorthorns and 7 Aberdeen Angus cattle on display.

Buyers from the Plankinton Packing Co., Milwaukee, Armour & Co., and Swift & Co., Chicago, and the Madison Packing company, were on hand and purchased at auction 41 of the animals shown. The average price received was $17.95 a hundred weight. Top price was $23. Plankinton & Co. purchased the champion steer.

Plans are already under way for the building up of still greater interest in baby beef in Wisconsin. All boys and girls who showed animals which failed to get prize money at the show had their expenses paid, thus encouraging wider effort.

Officers will soon announce complete details of the next year's plans, which will probably be arranged in co-operation with the International Live Stock Exposition in such a way as to make the state events lead directly up to the big winter classic.

PATRIOTIC CONCERT ON TUESDAY EVENING

State School for the Blind Orchestra Render Wonderful Music at Congregational Church.

A program distinguished by close harmony and pure tonal qualities was given last evening at the Congregational church by the pupils of the State School for the Blind. The opening number, a patriotic march, played by the school orchestra, and the closing selection, also given by them, showed the unity of effect of long continued practice. A slide from solo, played by Aloysius Garkowski, was rendered with a smooth, mellow tone which was very pleasing. The duet given by Mr. Hansen, in which the latter played the cornet, was given by both with sweetness and a blending of melody which was most effective.

The Miserere from Trovatore was the duet given. The cornet solo, "The Whirlwind," given by Mr. Hansen, was a good example of execution and was well rendered. A wonderful tone was achieved by Clementz Ozerach in the cello solo, "Swat. Evening in the forest," and the violin solo, "Indian Lament," by Lloyd Harmon, was a pleasing and enjoyable number.

The chorus work of the program was very good. "Star of Descending Night" and the Miller's Woogie, being one group of songs, and "Keep the Home Fires Burning," and "Oh, Italia, Italia Beloved," the other selection. The sextette from Lucia, given by a girls' double trio, and a "Medley of National Airs," sung by eight young ladies, showed the really good voices of those taking part, being blended in a harmonious whole, by careful training. The duet "A. B. C.," by Miss Lillie Lohry, and William Hansen, was a humorous selection, given with good taste and effect. The whole concert was of high class music, given in an artistic and capable way, and the audience was so well pleased that they were not satisfied to go away until "On Wisconsin" was given as a closing number by the orchestra.

MORE WARRANTS IN THE THEATRE CASE

Peter Pry Finds That Evansville Is Still Aroused Over the Sunday Moving Picture Shows.

(By Peter Pry.)

Evansville, Wis., Nov. 21.—Well, that question of whether Mr. and Mrs. George Magee can conduct a moving picture show on Sunday evenings, which no admission is charged, is still debatable. Arrested some days ago for this offense, their trial has not been held owing to the fact that both Magee and his wife are in the Evansville district court at Janesville, but the Sunday shows continued. The next move was a second arrest on a new warrant this time sworn out by Dr. Blevins of the Evansville Seminary, so they are in for two trials instead of one and the shows still continue. In fact, the audience at present and until the question is settled I suppose that Mr. and Mrs. Magee will continue to run their Sunday shows for the benefit fund for the Evansville soldiers in actual service and also continue to be arrested regularly. Meanwhile Evansville is just as stirred up as ever and the city is waxing cold under the collar whenever Sunday shows are mentioned.

News Notes from Movieland

BY DAISY DEAN

From the little land of the cherry blossoms trips Tsuru Aoki Hayakawa, greatest of Japanese pictorial heads before to cook her small sleek head before the big American camera; to peer across the screen at American audiences with her fascinating almond-shaped eyes. Tsuru Aoki opened her ninety something; her nurse blinked little black twinklers in Tokio in eighteen-ninety something; her nurse blinked her eyes and Tsuru blinked hers and it's been said that from that moment she began to observe life and mimic it.

One of your born actresses, was this little Japanese. Other actors and actresses were in her family, and all ready at the age of eight Tsuru Aoki was traveling here and there with her aunt and uncle, appearing on the stage.

She began her screen career in America with "The Wrath of the Gods" and she brought to the American screen a something that distinguishes the oriental from the American—that deep fatalism of the east, the note of tragedy amid beauty, of fear among flowers, of mystery among smiles that is Japan.

She will be remembered also in "The Reckoning" and "The Soul of a Samurai." "The Soul of a Samurai" is always with her haunting charm, her quiet sincerity. In the three last she appeared with her husband, Sessue Hayakawa, whom may be noted this name similarity.

Helen Ferguson, leading woman with Taylor Holmes in the Esanay, "Fools for Luck," has made the error of allowing herself to be just seventeen. There is no possible way for her to get down now; she will just have to stick to seventeen, which is a terribly out-of-the-way age.

Charlotte Bronte's novel, "Jane Eyre," a thriller which long did valiant service in the field of the twenty-third, has finally reached the movies. It is now being screened with Alice Brady in the title role.

The world Film Corporation is reversing the customary formula by taking a film called "Over Here," a picture of the building and operation of one of the great United States Army cantonments. The cantonment in question is Camp Pike, in Arkansas.

We have received word that Edmund Brees is soon to be in our midst. It is said the veteran Edmund is about to blossom forth in a new screen venture cut from the same pattern as "The Lion and the Mouse." That terrific blonde, Alma Hanlon, will have a prominent part in it.

"The Hidden Hand" is the latest detective photo play from the typewriter of Arthur B. Reeve. Reeve will be remembered as the originator of "Craig Kennedy, Detective." He was long a newspaper man in New York city, and during that time was known as an investigator of crime and criminals.

Mrs. Bahr expect to locate in Milwaukee.

Ed. Acheson, son and daughter of Janesville, spent Sunday at Glenn Clark's and attended church services here. All were pleased to meet Ed, as he was one of our Magnolia boys.

Ray Roberts spent Sunday at his home here.

George Schmelling and Mr. Mitchell of Edgerton, are putting in the past week's stanchions for George and Dell Townsend and Mr. Klusmeyer.

Mr. Kemmerer of Janesville, was a business visitor in town today.

An urgent call has been cabled by the Red Cross commission in France for millions of surgical dressings, to be sent with all possible speed.

In response to that call a committee has been formed in Edgerton Red Cross branch to start such work at once. This committee is planning to hold a soldiers bazaar to raise money to buy the goods, hundreds of yards of which will be needed. We know that everyone will want to help, as these dressings will mean life or death to our own men at the front.

We are asking every one, and this means you, to donate something to this bazaar that can be sent to a soldier. The money from the sale of these articles is to be used in buying surgeons' guns.

The bazaar will be held at the Doty store on Saturday December 1.

A list of acceptable articles, suggested by the Red Cross Magazine, are: khaki handkerchiefs, writing material, home made scrap books, boy-scout knives, trench mirrors, mouth organs, puzzles, playing cards, games, electric torch, compass, match boxes, knitted articles, filled sewing kits, comfort bags, boxes packed with chewing gum, liquorice, dates, figs, raisins, prunes, chocolate bars, hard home-made candy and salted nuts.

CONSCRIPTED MEN ARE PAID AT CAMP CUSTER

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Camp Custer, Mich., Nov. 21.—The first financial recognition made by the war department to the selectees of Michigan and Wisconsin at Camp Custer was received today. All of the infantry regiments received compensation today which was $30 a man. It was estimated that a million and a half dollars were handed out by Captain Brooke, disbursing officer.

This money is going to come in handy for the majority of soldiers as they cannot get any money without any funds and need to say they have been without finances for several days.

King of the Khyber Rifles

A Romance of Adventure

CHAPTER X.

Even with the man with the stomach ache mounted on the spare horse for the sake of extra speed (and he was not suffering one-fifth so much as he pretended); with Ismail to urge, and King to coax, and the fear of mountain death on every side of them, they were the part of a night and a day and a night and a part of another day in reaching Khinjan.

At night and at noon they slept fitfully at the chance-met shrine of some holy man. The "Hills" are full of them, marked by fluttering rags that can be seen for miles away; and though the Quran's meaning must be stretched to find excuse, and hillmen are adept at stretching things and hold those shrines as sacred as the book itself. Men who would almost rather cut throats than gamble regard them as sanctuaries. So a man may rest in temporary peace even on the road to Khinjan, although Khinjan and peace have nothing whatever in common.

It was at such a shrine, surrounded by tattered rags tied to sticks, that fluttered in the wind three or four thousand feet above Khyber level, that King drew Ismail into conversation, and deftly forced on him the role of questioner.

"How canst thou see the caves?" he asked, for King had hinted at his intention; and for answer King gave him a glimpse of the gold bracelet.

"Aye! Well and good! But even she dare not disobey the rule. Khinjan was there before she came, and the rule was there from the beginning, when the first men found the caves! Some—hundreds—have gained admission, lacking the right. But who ever saw them again? Allah! I, for one, would not chance it!"

"Thou and I are two men!" answered King. "I shall see the caves."

"Aye! But listen! How many Indian servants of the British Raj have set out to see the caves? Many, many—aye, very many! Some, having got by Khinjan, entered the caves. None ever came out again!"

"Then, what is my case to thee?" King asked him. "If I cannot come out again and there is a secret, then the secret will be kept, and what is the trouble?"

"I love thee," the Afridi answered simply. "Thou art a man after mine own heart. Turn! Go back before it is too late!"

King shook his head.

"I was in Khinjan once before, my friend! I know the rule! I failed to reach the caves that other time because I had no witnesses to swear they had seen me slay a man in the teeth of written law. I know!"

"Who saw thee this time?" Ismail asked, and began to cackle with the cruel humor of the "Hills," that sees amusement in a man's undoing, or in the destruction of his plans. "Be warned and go back!"

"Come with me, then."

"Nay, I am her man. She waits for me!"

"I imagine she waits for me!" laughed King. "Forward! We have rested in this place long enough!"

It was ten of a blazing forenoon, and the sun had heated up the rocks until it was pain to walk on them and agony to sit, when they topped the last escarpment and came in sight of Khinjan's walls, across a mile-wide rock ravine—Khinjan the unregenerate.

that has no other human habitation within a march because none dare build.

It was midday when at last they stood on bottom and swayed like men in a dream fingering their bruises and scarcely able for the heat haze to see the tangled mass of stone towers and mud-and-stone walls that faced them, a mile away. They were nearly across the valley, hunting for shadow where none was to be found, when a shot salute brought them up all-standing in a cluster. Six or eight nickel-coated bullets splattered on the rocks close by, and one so narrowly missed King that he could feel its wind.

Up went all their hands together, and they held them so until they ached. Nothing whatever happened. Their arms ceased aching and grew numb.

They advanced another two hundred yards and another volley rattled among the rocks on either hand, frightening one of the mules so that it stumbled and fell and had to be helped up again. When that was done, and the mule stood trembling, they all faced the wall. But they were too weary to hold their hands up any more. Thirst had begun to exercise its sway. One of the men was half delirious.

"Who are ye?" howled a human being, whose voice was so like a wolf's that the words at first had no meaning.

He held up his wrist to show the gold bracelet, and high over his head the Rangar laughed like a bell.

"Shabash!" he laughed. "Well done! Enter, Kurram Khan, and be welcome, thou and thy men. Be welcome in her name!"

Somebody pulled a rope and the door yawned wide, giving on a kind of courtyard whose high walls allowed no view of anything but not blue sky. Through a gap under an arch in a far corner of the courtyard came a one-eyed, lean-looking villain in Afridi dress who leaned on a long gun and stared at them under his hand. After a leisurely consideration of them he rubbed his nose slowly with one finger, spat contemptuously, and then used the finger to beckon them, crooking it queerly and turning on his heel. He did not say a word.

King led the way after him on foot, for even in the "Hills" where cruelty is a virtue, a man may be excused, on economic grounds, for showing mercy to his beast. His men tugged the weary animals along behind him, through the gap under the arch and along an almost interminable, smelly maze of alleys whose sides were the walls of square stone towers, or sometimes of mud-and-stone-walled compounds, and here and there of sheer, slab-sided cliff. Like Old Jerusalem, the place could have contained a civil war of a hundred factions, and still have opposed stout resistance to an outside army.

Alley gave on to courtyard, and filthy square to alley, until unexpectedly at last a seemingly blind passage turned sharply and opened on a straight street, of fair width, and more than half a mile long. It is marked "Street of the Dwellings" on the secret army maps, and it has been burned so often by Khinjan rioters, as well as by expeditions out of India, that a man who goes on a long journey never expects to find it the same on his return.

It was lined on either hand with motley dwellings, out of which a motley crowd of people swarmed to stare at King and his men. There were Hindus—sycophants, keepers of accounts and writers to the chiefs (since literacy is at a premium in these parts). In proof of Khinjan's catholic taste and indiscriminate villainy, there were women of nearly every Indian breed and caste, many of them stolen into shameful slavery, but some of them there from choice. And there were little children—little naked brats with round drum tummies, who squealed and shrilled and stared with bold eyes.

Perhaps a thousand souls came out to watch, all told. Not an eye of them all missed the government marks on King's trappings, or the government brand on the mules, and after a minute, or two, when the procession was half-way down the street, a man reproved a child who had thrown a stone, and he was backed up by the others. They classified King correctly, exactly as he meant they should. As a hakim—a man of medicine—he could all a long-felt want; but by the brand on his accoutrements he walked an openly avowed robber, and that made him a brother in crime. Somebody sniffed the next child who picked up a stone.

As they approached a Rangar, turcrossed like a bridge from wall to wall, with a parapet of stone built upon it, pierced for rifle-fire.

ban, not unlike King's own, appeared above the parapet on the ledge and a voice he recognized hailed him good-humoredly.

"Salaam aleikoum!"

"And upon thee be peace!" King answered in the Pashtu tongue, for the mother sent the following telegram, says the Pathfinder:

"For unto us a child is born.—Isaiah ix. 6."

"Oh John," exclaimed the girl chum to her husband on receiving the dispatch. "I have just got a telegram from Gladys and what do you think?"

"You have got me chucked out at first in the conundrum game," indulgently smiled John. "What's the answer?"

"Gladys has a baby boy!" enthusiastically responded little wife. "His name is Ismail, and he weighs nine pounds and six ounces."

"What's the matter, old man?" he said to her the next morning.

"You look blue."

"I feel blue."

"But last night you were the jolliest member of our party."

"I remember it."

"You acted like a boy just let out of school."

"I felt like one."

"You said that your wife had gone away for the first time in three years, and there wasn't anyone to say a word if you went home and kicked over the hall clock."

"You said that if you stayed out until 4 o'clock there was no one to look at you reproachfully and sigh and make you feel mean."

"Yes, and I stayed out until then, didn't I?"

"You certainly did."

"And I gave a war whoop on the front doorstep."

"Yes, and you sang a verse from a comic opera and tried to dance a jig."

"Yes, and my wife missed that train, now, please, go away and let me alone!"

Dinner Stories

Some time ago the stork visited the home of a happy young couple and wishing to notify her girl chum the mother sent the following telegram, says the Pathfinder:

"For unto us a child is born.—Isaiah ix. 6."

Not an eye of them all missed the government marks on King's trappings, or the government brand on the mules, and after a minute, or two, when the procession was half-way down the street, a man reproved a child who had thrown a stone, and he was backed up by the others. They classified King correctly, exactly as he meant they should. As a hakim—a man of medicine—he could all a long-felt want; but by the brand on his accoutrements he walked an openly avowed robber, and that made him a brother in crime. Somebody sniffed the next child who picked up a stone.

As they approached a Rangar, turcrossed like a bridge from wall to wall, with a parapet of stone built upon it, pierced for rifle-fire.

HEARKEN—

The Voice of Your Grocer & Butcher

And Pay Your Grocery or Meat Bill Every 30 Days
If You Want to Preserve Your Credit.

Owing to the High Cost of Goods and the Expense of Selling Same We Are Compelled to Require All Accounts Both Past and Future to Be Paid in Full Every Thirty Days.

Effective December 1, 1917; All Grocery Accounts Must Be Paid Every Thirty Days
Failure So To Do Will Mean a Suspension of Further Credit.

When you fail to pay your telephone bill at a stipulated time each month service is suspended, therefore you pay cheerfully.

When you neglect to pay your gas or electric bill on or before the 10th of the month your meter is disconnected without ceremony. You know you have to pay and you do so good humoredly.

When your insurance premiums are unpaid the policy lapses and becomes worthless.
You are familiar with this insurance requirement, and keep your policies alive.

And when you neglect or fail to pay your water bill by a certain date, your own city government shuts off your water supply without notice. You know this and pay without a murmur.

Believing that your grocer and butcher are entitled to as much, if not more, consideration than any public service corporation or concern, the Retail Grocers and Butchers of Janesville have adopted as individual members and as a whole the rule of suspension of credit on all accounts not paid in thirty days. Mr. Hoover, of the United States Food administration, heartily favors this plan as making for better business economy and a sharp reduction in the cost of doing a retail business.

Your grocer or butcher can less afford to carry the burden of your unpaid account than most any class of business with which you deal. He must pay the jobbers for the goods he sells you on credit and at a very low margin of profit. It is unjust and burdensome for your grocer or butcher to have to pay interest on YOUR grocery or meat bills, which he does when you do not pay him.

We believe that you will agree that this rule will benefit the public fully as much as the grocers and butchers, inasmuch as it will tend to lower the present high cost of living and will not work the slightest hardship on anyone. It simply puts business on a better basis than heretofore.

A suspension of credit to those who fail to pay at the end of thirty days does not mean that your credit is not good, but that your grocer or butcher needs the money to carry on his business of serving you.

THEREFORE, PLEASE TAKE NOTICE

All accounts at the stores of the members of the Janesville Retail Grocers' and Butchers' Association will henceforth be due and must be paid at the end of thirty days. If not paid within thirty days further credit on such unpaid accounts will be suspended without notice.

Please prepare to comply with this requirement as promptly and cheerfully as you do the same rule enforced by the Telephone Companies, the Gas and Electric Companies and our City Water Department.

Very Respectfully,
